7 percent growth goal draws criticism

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Paying for infrastructure needed to increase the town's size by 7 percent was the key area of concern for more than 40 residents who attended a public meeting last week on economic strategy.

The cost of waiving offsite levies, deferring permit fees and servicing developable lots were of concern to residents who felt Didsbury could not afford to open itself up to seven percent growth.

But Didsbury Mayor Ray Lea said town services are already handling the current three to four percent growth Didsbury has experienced in the last few years and it is capable of handling more.

"Seven percent will help share the cost of our facilities," Lea said, comparing services Didsbury lacks with Olds which has a population of over 5000. "And when we hit that mark we can attract a lot more services too because many need to have that population before they will even think about coming here."

Lea said the town is targeting growth in the population because they feel services will follow.

"We are looking at the service industry," he said. "With more people, jobs will follow the people into the community."

Acting town manager Doug Plamping said town council chose to try and attract service based industry because traditional industrial business has simply stopped growing.

"The bottom line in Canada today is that it is a service economy. If you go out and attract the people, the services will follow. That's today's economy."

Plamping also told the residents concerned that the strategies designed to attract greater population would mean higher taxes, that council has a plan in place to pay its ideas. He said the town's $1 million reserve will be invested in programs over Generations. The Murphy family is no stranger to hockey as the three generations who got together at last week's Grizzlys award night banquet can attest. Joe Murphy, kneeling, a retiring player with the Grizzlys, gathered with Frank Murphy, Cliff Murphy, Angeline Murphy and Cliff Murphy Sr. to celebrate the sport and Joe's accomplishments with the Grizzlys. the next three years and extra tax revenue from growth after that period will be used to continue the programs.

Besides their concerns over the cost of attracting growth, residents at the meeting seemed in favor of the town's plans for loosening restrictions on development. Developers and other business people expressed their approval over the idea to change the town's municipal planning commission to include less council members and more residents-at-large. They were also pleased with plans to draft by-laws which clearly outline incentives for developers interested in building in town.

The group was also told that the town's by-law enforcement officer will be given greater leeway to grant permits, reducing the amount of bureaucracy involved in the town's development application process.

Hello again

You may be asking yourself why a subscription newspaper is coming free to your mailbox this week. That's a good question and to answer, we say it's because this is a special occasion.

The Didsbury Review is being delivered to nearly all homes in the county this week to advertise the upcoming Didsbury Moonlight Madness and Show and Shine event on May 12. The cost to blanket the area is being covered by the advertisers. We hope you enjoy your one free week of the Didsbury Review.

Residents cut short on corporate review questioning

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Two local residents who asked town council to answer their concerns over the recent corporate review have been told they will have to find their answers somewhere else.

Brian Baswick and Gary Halfyard were told council would not answer any more questions regarding the corporate review after the two asked several pointed questions at the last town council meeting.

Halfyard and Baswick took advantage of some time set aside for them by council to ask questions regarding the qualifications of George Cuff and Associates, the company hired to undertake the review, while former town manager Mike Storey took notes.

The two also asked questions about Cuff's association with Doug Plamping, the acting town manager who was hired on the recommendation of Cuff.

But after answering several questions, Mayor Ray Lea cut off the discussion

Town council notes

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A request for financial support from the Didsbury and District Historical Society has been passed on to the town council community services committee for recommendation.

Members of the Historical Society made the request at council's last meeting.

The Historical Society usually receives an annual grant from the town for the operations of the Didsbury Museum, housed in the old brick school house adjacent to the Didsbury High School. Over the past few years, the society has been faced with high utilities costs because of the age of the building. Former Society president Terry Walls said his group has also undertaken renovations in the last two years to help offset some of those costs and to help stop deterioration of artifacts. One of the projects completed was the covering and insulation of windows in the museum to help save heating costs and reduce the amount of ultraviolet light which is damaging to historical artifacts.

Walls said the society plans to replace the heating system in the museum with a high pressure hot water system. They are planning a variety of fundraising events to help cover the $40,000 cost for the new system.

Town council has agreed to cover the cost of installing a shallow sewer line service to four lots in Southridge because of an original installation mistake.

Council will pay $17,200 to run direct shallow sewer line service to the four lots because the street service was originally 22 feet deep. The developer is generally expected to cover the cost of direct connection to lots, but because of the mistake, the developer will only be charged the usual rate for direct shallow connection - $1300 per lot.

Council chose to run shallow lines to the lots instead of meeting the deeper lines because of the high costs associated with future maintenance of the lines at 22 feet.

Council has granted the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Alberta

the right to hold their "Ride for Life" in Didsbury on May 30.

Participants will collect pledges from the community to take part in the event which is a fundraiser for the Foundation. Participants will take part in a 5 km ride on a thirty-seater bicycle.

Didsbury town council passed a by-law at their last town council meeting officially rescinding Didsbury's Family and Community Social Services by-law.

With the rescinding of the by-law, all the business of the former FCSS committee will be undertaken by town council's new Community Services department, now under the direction of former Recreation Director Ken Luck.

Members of the FCSS board will be thanked by letter from town council and they will be encouraged to remain active in community services by volunteering for the community services advisory board.

Crime watch changes hands

Special to the Review

On Tuesday, April 25, the Didsbury Urban Crime Watch Society said goodbye to four of its founding members. After two years of serving as officers of the Crime Watch, Chairman Doug Sharpe and directors Harley Seymour, Tom Gunderson and Gilles Couture turned the reigns of power over to a new group of men and women.

These men took an ordinary idea of helping to prevent crime in Didsbury and turned it into a reality. With their help and dedication, the Society now has close to 40 members and is well on the way to accomplishing the goal set out two years ago.

It is now up to the new Chairman, Wade MacKenzie, Secretary/Treasurer, Karen Miko and directors Bill Fleming, Ray Miko and Sherry MacKenzie to carry on the tradition of excellence set by these four gentlemen.

The first task of these new officers is to complete the work of putting up the Didsbury Urban Crime Watch signs which will be on every road leading into Didsbury. This will be done as soon as the frost has left the ground so that the posts can be placed.

at the council meeting. Halfyard and Baswick were then asked to meet with council at a later date to continue the discussion in camera. Later, council sent a letter to the two, declining to answer any further questions unless they pertained to council's actions.

"The Corporate Review is a report stating the observations of our consultant, utilizing his experience in municipal government, interviews with council and staff and review of Town documents. Although the Corporate Review has been accepted by council, it has not been approved as policy. Council will review each and every recommendation of the Corporate Review separately and will, as elected representatives of the community, decide to act or not to act as appropriate."

"Based on this, council is not willing to respond to questions on the contents of the Corporate Review on a line by line basis. What council is willing to respond to are questions on the actions of your council, and if you have questions on those areas please attend the Question and Answer Period at the beginning of any council meeting," council said in a letter to Halfyard and Baswick.

County residents face higher taxes

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

County residents will likely pay five percent higher taxes this year, a figure county council is blaming on education taxes.

Comptroller/Treasurer Harold Johnsrude told county council education taxes for the County of Mountain View will increase 10 percent this year because of the province-wide equalized tax rate. Education taxes will also increase 15 percent next year and another six percent in 1997.

Johnsrude said budget reductions in other areas of county operations means no increase in taxes for municipal purposes despite continuingly decreasing provincial funding. Funding for maintenance of bridges and secondary roads decreased significantly, making a large impact on the county budget and leading Johnsrude to believe the county will need to increase taxes on the municipal side in the next few years to help cover basic costs.

As a result of the loss of funding, Johnsrude said he is predicting a $185,000 budget deficit. He said the deficit will be covered by a $467,000 surplus from the 1994 budget.

County reeve John Grimstead

said the county is facing a difficult financial time over the next few years as they attempt to deal with the downloading of services and the decreased funding from the provincial government.

"One of our biggest concerns is that services are expected. Everyone expects bridges and roads to be maintained," he said. "When we look at the responsibilities that have been transferred to this municipality, that translates to big bucks fast."

County council hopes to have a mill rate by-law in place by their next meeting. They are still waiting for word from the hospitals on whether they will requisition funds.

The volunteer experience. Din Ladak of Roper Hull Child Services was one of the key speakers at the Ruralize '95 conference held in Didsbury last week. Ladak spoke about the demands on volunteer organizations including the need to diversify and manage change. About 65 participants registered for the conference held at the Memorial Complex last Thursday. Janice Harrington photo

Lest we forget

Janice Harrington

It is a shame that Didsbury has planned so little to commemorate the celebration of the 50th anniversary of Victory in Europe Day.

On May 8, 1945, Canadians were revered in many countries for their efforts in liberating Europeans from the tyranny of the Nazis. Television and other media coverage of the celebrations in the Netherlands gives everyone a good idea of just how important the Canadian efforts were. The Canadians are heroes in Europe for their sacrifices to help free countries to which they were not tied.

The Dutch people have spared no expense to give Canadians a heroes welcome and to treat them royally during this important commemoration. The Dutch people, from the eldest who lived through the war, to the youngest, are remembering the horrors of war and the systematic genocide of the Nazi regime and are celebrating their liberation from that horror.

But in Canada, in Didsbury, there is little to celebrate their accomplishments of the Canadian soldiers. Few would even be aware of the anniversary if it hadn't been for the hoopla created by the Europeans. In Didsbury, the home of many soldiers who were intimately involved in the liberation of Europe, only the museum has taken the time to mark the occasion.

Many Didsburians alive today were part of the push to send the Germans back to their own country. Many Didsburians remain at rest where they fell, where their graves are lovingly attended to by grateful Europeans. But here, at home, we do little to mark the sacrifice of our grandfathers.

It is the generation that came after who should be involved in the commemoration. It is our generations who should be throwing flowers and shouting and clapping our thanks as they are in Europe. Without our grandfathers' efforts, who knows what the world order would be today. Without their remembrances and stories, we might forget just how brutal war is and how far we need to go to protect the lives of the people who are affected by the political ambitions of madmen.

So, in spite of the lack of pomp and ceremony in Didsbury, this column is to inform the veterans, and the families of soldiers who didn't make it home, there are those of us who do remember and who sincerely appreciate and have (hopefully) taken to heart the lessons you so brutally learned on European battle fields. We are proud of your accomplishments and honor you.

Quote of the week

"I commend council for their (economic development strategy) proposal. I suggest that we all get behind council with our support and help get our town back on the map."

Didsbury resident Bill Cowan addressing his feelings about the economic development strategies outlined by town council at a public meeting on the issue last week.

The public opinion

by Ken Luck
Recreation Director

Recently our organization underwent some relatively major changes as part of a corporate restructuring process. In turn one becomes very aware of the stress associated with change both within your own organization and abroad. I constantly hear people comment that their job now has the responsibilities of two jobs. Stress levels are high in the workplace and in the home. Women, for example, have still not achieved pay equity with men and over 60 percent are working full-time while raising children either alone or with a partner. Job security is a thing of the past and whole sectors of the work force are disappearing.

In today's economy and political climate, we are told to take more responsibility for our health and recreation. However, it is often a major effort to regularly participate in recreation activities. We tend to do things in fits and spurts. We have become a society of couch potatoes. Recreation is good for you, recreation and fitness equal a full and meaningful life and recreation and active living are important aspects of a healthy lifestyle. We all know these phrases but do we practice what we preach?

I believe we need to recognize that the small things in life are important such as getting out as a family, discovering a new place, taking your children out to the park or hiking through a trail. These are the many aspects of recreation and active living that improve our quality of life and personal well-being and will help to keep things in perspective when the world at times appears to be falling down around us. Get out and celebrate life as often as you can by living actively. You do not need a birthday as an excuse.

Review a positive process

Dear Editor:

Education Minister Halvar Jonson has made a commitment to ensure that Alberta's education system is open and accountable. He has asked Jocelyn Burgener, MLA for Calgary-Currie, Mark Hlady, MLA for Calgary Mountain View and me, to consult with Albertans and to develop recommendations on measuring, reporting and using results to improve student achievement and learning.

Since June we've met with more than 600 Albertans at 18 meetings across the province and we've received more than 500 written submissions. On behalf of the Implementation Team on Accountability in Education, I would like to thank everyone who participated in the process.

Our MLA Team is now winding down the consultation process. All of the input we've received is being consolidated and shortly we will submit our report on what we heard from Albertans to the Minister of Education. The Minister then will

Discipline a matter of limits

Dear Editor:

In regards to the editorial of May 2, 1995, I too agree with the acquittal of the man accused of abusing his child by spanking. How a parent disciplines his child is entirely his own business (within reason, of course).

However, this is where my agreement with your opinion ends. Your editorial states that spanking is the only way to "get the message through" to a child that repeatedly ignores a command (i.e. to stay away from the street). If your child "cannot think abstractly for the first several (3? 5? 7?) years of life", your child should not be left in a position where (s)he can play in the street! It is a parent's job to protect and guide their children until they can grasp these concepts themselves. Parents need to play with their children, not send them outside alone to play, or let them run ahead if they are too young to handle this responsibility.

Many people have used the argument "I was spanked and I turned out just fine." In fact I too supported this view, that is until I had my own child. Spanking a small child tells that child that while they cannot hit another person (or throw toys, or play in the street), it is acceptable for a big person to hit a smaller person. True, some children will disobey and spanking begins to look more and more attractive. But limits can be set in more "humane" ways than physical ones. Remove your child from the situation or remove privileges. A good wallop may solve the problem at the time and relieve some of your frustration, but you are not helping your child learn right from wrong.

Disciplining your child does not need to be a dressing down, it needs to teach them in a firm and loving manner that there are some behaviors you can accept and some that you cannot.

Sincerely,
Tracey McFarland

The golden apple

Dear Editor:

Your last editorial on child punishment is right on and I would therefore like to share this incident out of my own childhood.

My earliest memories are of the times that I misbehaved and what I learned from them.

With my one and a half year old brother, I went as a four-year-old to a kindergarten that was run by R.C. nuns. In order to go to kindergarten we had to stay with my uncles and aunts, unmarried sisters and brothers of my mother, who were farmers.

In kindergarten I had demolished a little castle that the girls had built from building blocks. The type of mild punishment that I received from the nuns has slipped my mind, but my uncle's reaction to this crime after my brother had informed him of my misdeed was that I had to kneel for one hour on the hard oak floor in the living room. All the other members of the household were outside in the garden or field and I was kept company by an old grandfather clock whose handcarved case from 1818 gave it undisputed authority to form an hour into part of eternity. After this ancient and tired great-great-great grandfather clock had counted the hour with 3,600 tick-tocks, my uncle came and pulled a big delicious golden apple out of his pocket and set me free from my solitary confinement for further mischief. In later life, I have always made it a point to give some sort of golden apple to a child that I had to punish.

Canadians want to get tough

Dear Editor:

Once again I find myself inundated with thousands of letters from Canadians who are very concerned about their safety and calling for a tightening of the Young Offenders Act.

Some people mock the calls for tougher sentencing. They say the evidence 'clearly demonstrates punishment is not the answer'. They scream that factors which contribute to violence include poverty, broken or abusive homes, neglect and substance abuse. They say the answer to violence is more and more money - increasing funding for child welfare, counselling and community support for the family. As violent crime and recidivism rates increase, Canadians have realized 'they' are wrong.

Canadians do not want to hear from the apologists any longer.

Canadians want the criminal justice system to get tough with young offenders and help protect the law-abiding citizens. Too much time, effort and money has gone into excusing the criminal element. It's time to act!

Since young people themselves are the greatest victims of youth crime, we should enlist their support and input on reforming the Young Offenders Act. Parents of young offenders should be held more responsible. Young offenders who commit serious crimes or are repeat offenders must be transferred to adult court.

I am reading hundreds of letters from Canadians and I know that the Justice Minister is receiving the same. I hope he listens to Canadians and makes our streets and communities safer for everyone.

Sincerely,
Myron Thompson, M.P.
Wild Rose Riding

An open letter to Alberta's Minister of Justice

Dear Sir:

We are very concerned about the new gun laws being forced through Parliament. They will give the government the freedom to add to this totalitarian legislation by Order-in-Council without limit and, if a gun owner doesn't subscribe to, and read, the Canada Gazette, he will not know what the latest offences are and could end up in prison, or heavily fined, although he has done no harm.

This legislation will turn Canada into a police state, giving the police the authority to ransack anybody's home on the slightest pretext related to the gun laws. Furthermore, if the occupants object or don't cooperate with this outrageous violation of their basic rights, they can be charged and convicted as if they had committed a serious criminal offence. And the government will confiscate without compensation certain firearms when the owner dies. This is a nightmare coming true and, if we don't stop it, will make a mockery of our brave "O Canada, our true north strong and free, we stand on guard for thee." As we all know, wherever there's a police state, police are hired who are willing, if not eager, to exercise their authority and we can be sure that Canada will be no exception.

Ironically, the whole exercise will be extremely costly and will do nothing to reduce crime. In fact, it will have the opposite effect. We hear much about the crime situation in the U.S.A., but on a per capita basis, they have less than we do, and in areas where law-abiding citizens are trained and allowed to defend themselves, the crime rate is greatly reduced. An example can be given in the well researched case of a Florida city where crimes against women were rampant. A large group of women took a course in gun handling from the police and this fact was well publicized. The result was a very marked decrease in crime and the women didn't have to use their guns - their capability was a great deterrent. Conversely, the virtual disarming of law-abiding Canadians, which is now being done, invites criminal activity against them. We don't need more laws. We need better enforcement of the ones we've got and an end to going soft on criminals and turning them loose to repeat their vicious crimes.

The only reason we can see for this firearms legislation is that it fits in with The Emergency Planning Order, a totalitarian document passed by the Trudeau government by Order-in-Council in June, 1981, doubtlessly to accommodate the wishes of the New World Order planners even then.

Under Section 92 of the BNA Act, which is still the overriding law of this land, we find that property rights belong to the provinces. The federal government has long overstepped its authority in several areas of provincial jurisdiction and this is another extremely serious breach of our Constitution involving an outright violation of our basic rights and freedoms which have been defended at such great cost by our young men during two world wars.

And now we are asking you, as the Justice Minister of Alberta, to defend the Constitutional rights of Alberta and Albertans and we trust that you will.

Mrs. Robert H. Ross

When it comes to worksite safety, we get below the surface.

With over 150,000 miles of buried facilities throughout Alberta, knowing exactly what's beneath your construction project is crucial. Damaging one buried facility could cost your company thousands of dollars in repair work - or possibly a life. Don't let this happen to you. Call Alberta One-Call, at least two full working days before you dig, and find out where the hidden hazards are at no cost to you. Just remember, it's your responsibility to hand expose these facilities before you proceed. So call Alberta One-Call and be safe on the job instead of sorry.

ALBERTA 1 CALL

Competition in who's name?

At the Legislature

by Bill MacLaughlin
CKUA Correspondent

The producer of the cheapest power in Alberta has been forbidden to sell it to you, so as to avoid distorting the market. The reason for the market is to make sure you pay the lowest prices.

Welcome to the Alberta Legislature, where Energy Minister Pat

Black has introduced legislation that would prohibit Edmonton Power, or any other publicly owned utility, from competing for new business in Alberta, all in the name of freeing up competition.

"When you intrude with government into the marketplace," Black told reporters, "you distort that competitive framework."

That's the essence of Bill 34, the Electric Utilities Act. There's a lot of good news in Bill 34. Almost everyone is pleased that it gets rid of EEMA, the old provincial system set up by the Lougheed conservatives and requires open competition among power producers like Alberta Power and TransAlta Utilities.

But publicly owned producers in Edmonton and Medicine Hat need not apply. According to Liberal leader Grant Mitchell, that means less competition.

"They're putting ideology ahead of cost practicality, because when you take Edmonton and Medicine Hat out of the picture, you reduce competition, and people will end up paying more for power across this province."

Could publicly-owned utilities do something to make themselves acceptable? The day after Bill 34 was introduced, Edmonton sent a letter to the Energy Minister, agreeing to a series of concessions designed to "level the playing field." Among other things, the company agreed to voluntarily pay the taxes charged to private producers. Would that be enough?

"No, it would not." Black won't say what would be enough. In fact, she told reporters she can't imagine what those companies could do to get in, as long as they're publicly-owned.

Ironically, part of the equation here is that Edmonton Power is considering following its sister company, Ed Tel, into privatization. With its control over huge coal reserves, and with the Genesee plant (courtesy of Edmonton taxpayers), the company is a juicy plum for any private company that might like to expand its business in Alberta.

If, somehow, Edmonton Power is suddenly denied access to any new markets, its value would almost certainly drop like a rock. Now those taxpayers are facing a huge loss...unless they can sell it to a private company that faces no such restrictions. The new owner gets those assets at well below their real value, at the expense of taxpayers and gets rid of a competitor who produced the cheapest power in Alberta.

The legislation followed 23 months of discussions among the stakeholders and a draft copy of Bill 34 from one month ago included a clause that called for fair and open competition. But when the bill was introduced, that clause was gone, replaced by a clause that specifically excludes Edmonton and Medicine Hat from competing.

According to Minister Black, Edmonton Power was the only player that couldn't agree. Grant Mitchell has a different version, which says all sides had reached a deal reflected in that earlier draft, "and we're pursuing the question of who had the influence to make the Minister change her mind after 23 months of consultation and agreement on the earlier draft. Somebody had to have the influence and we're looking at the question of who that might be."

You can also expect them to question what it means for Alberta Treasury Branches, or the Swan Hills waste treatment plant, which must both be distorting their respective markets.

Either the Klein government unloads ATB sometime in the next ten minutes or so (which Klein explicitly ruled out during the week), or Bill 34 isn't quite as ideologically pristine as Pat Black would have us believe.

Agricultural Society celebrates 10th anniversary

Special to the Review

The Didsbury Agricultural Society is in full swing in preparing for the August Fair, which will be happening August 18, 19, 20.

The FCA Rodeo will be featured, with the top stock and cowboys putting out their best. Two day rodeo passes will be available to the public. Contact Candy Scott for details. Rodeo programs will be free this year and in place of the programs cost, a donation box will be at the rodeo entrance. Proceeds will be going to one of our local community charities. The charity will be named at a later date.

The jackpot cattle and 4-H show will be bigger and better this year. We will be in a new location, now that the tent has to be moved for the new playground. On Saturday, August 19 the open 4-H heifer show will be in the afternoon. Our invitation to all 4-H members within and outside the County of Mountain View to participate. A new class is introduced, being the calendar cuties. Any youth aged 4-9 years is welcome to show a 1995 calendar year calf. Prize money and awards will be awarded to all classes. Sponsors are Masterfeeds, D. & K. Scheidt and the West Didsbury 4-H alumni. Contact Bert or Pat 335-4087 for details and entry forms. The open jackpot cattle show will be happening on Sunday, August 20. A new class event will be the Charolais show. Local Charolais breeders will be showing their best stock. For more details and entry forms contact T. Kasprick and/or C. Fletcher.

For the horse enthusiasts, cattle penning and cattle cutting will be held on the Sunday. Contact Mike Barr (cutting) or Dixie Viney (penning) for details.

For the gardeners, green thumbs, crafts and bakers, the Bench Show will be on Saturday, August 19. The bench fair is shaping up to be another successful show (as long as Mother Nature co-operates!). Catalogues will be out shortly. Should you wish to become involved with the bench fair, please contact Bob Davidson or Jean Flett.

The breakfasts will be sponsored by the Didsbury Elks and tentatively the combined churches of Didsbury, who may also be doing the Sunday service.

Our concession people, Jim McLean and the Lions Club will be on hand for the weekend for all your favorite foods.

The parade, everyone's favorite, will be supporting the theme Salute to Didsbury Ag. Society's 10th anniversary. Call Ken Anderson for details. Participants are invited to decorate accordingly with the many avenues the Ag. Society has to offer - Farmers' Market, rodeo, our gracious sponsors, volunteers, bench fair, cattle shows - get the idea! We look forward to having the best parade ever - saluting our tenth anniversary.

Waste not. Olds College Composting Technology Centre manager Larry Arvay holds on to the tree while MLA Roy Brassard (right) and Olds Mayor Bob Armstrong help feed a symbolic tree with some of the product of the centre. The tree will be planted on the grounds of the centre, which officially opened its doors last week. The centre is being heralded for its efforts to reduce the amount of solid, organic waste which ends up in out landfill sites. Janice Harrington photo

There will also be kids games throughout the weekend and that ever popular money pit, thanks to G. Reimer, will be back. Wes Thomas is working on providing a fun filled weekend for young kids.

The Ag. Society members are working hard to present you with an eventful weekend. If you would like to volunteer to help with any of the events or have any new ideas you'd like to submit, please contact Vair Whitlow our president, or any of the event organizers.

Don't forget the Didsbury Farmers' Market opens on May 10 on the curling rink ice surface. Irene Collinge, who organized the market, will be leaving us to undergo new activities, so our best to her. Watch for new faces and our good ole reliables to bring you the 1995 Farmers' Market.

The Ag. Society is also offering a $200 scholarship to youth who plan to continue their education in agriculture through business college or university. Deadline is the end of June. Call Vair Whitlow for details and an application form.

Olds 4-Her receives Premier's award

Special to the Review

An 18-year-old high school student from Olds is the 1995 recipient of the Alberta 4-H program's highest honor.

Tracy Gardner was chosen as the Premier's Award winner at the annual Alberta 4-H Selections program in Olds, April 28 through May 1. Some 138 of the province's top 4-H members attended the personal development and group interaction weekend.

Gardner was selected from a group of finalists known as the Ambassador Group. The 1995 group members are Crista Anderson of Taber, Jodi Cunningham of Milk River, Andrea Dar of Wetaskiwin, Carla Dubovsky of Busby, Alison Gabert of Edberg, Charlene Preston of Hanna, Curtis Smith of Fawcett, Ryan Shumard of Grand Prairie and Amy Wisniewski of Hairy Hill.

Gardner said she's excited to have been named recipient of the 32nd annual award.

"It is a great honor to represent Alberta 4-H," she said.

As one of her responsibilities

she will represent Alberta at the Young Foresters Camp in Newfoundland this August.

For the last six years, Gardner has been an active member of the Eagle 4-H Beef Club. As well as holding all executive positions in her club, she has participated in various regional and provincial 4-H activities. In addition to 4-H, Gardner is involved with other youth groups.

Gardner succeeds Julie Hadwin of Consort, who received the Premier's Award in 1994.

Olds-Didsbury MLA Roy Brassard presented Gardner with the award trophy on behalf of Premier Ralph Klein and the Alberta government. Gardner will officially accept her award from Premier Klein at a later date. Brassard also extended greetings and congratulations to the other participants and award recipients.

Trip awards to 57 delegates were also announced at an awards breakfast. These 4-Hers will represent Alberta at major educational programs and tours throughout Canada and the United States over the next 12 months.

Senior Alberta 4-H members, 16 years of age and older, can participate in the selections program. Members are evaluated throughout the weekend to determine their eligibility for trip awards. The selection process includes points from their yearly 4-H diaries, a current events/4-H examination, peer evaluation and group interaction assessment by leaders.

During the selections weekend, delegates participate in activities designed to improve leadership and life skills. This year's theme was "Talkin' Type".

Selections is organized by the home economics and 4-H branch of Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development. It is sponsored by Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada, Alberta Pool, United Grain Growers and Alberta Agriculture.

What's cooking?

Sometimes there's nothing more satisfying than bringing family and friends together for a home-cooked meal that's as easy to prepare as it is to enjoy.

|--|--------------------------------|
| 2 tbsp (25 mL) vegetable oil | 1 cup (250 mL) hot water |
| 1 lb (500 g) boneless chicken breasts | 1 cup (250 mL) 2% milk |
| 1 cup (250 mL) sliced zucchini | 2 tbsp (25 mL) flour |
| 1 cup (250 mL) sliced mushrooms | 1 tsp (5 mL) Dijon mustard |
| ½ red pepper, chopped | ½ tsp (2 mL) dried basil |
| 2 OXO Vegetable Bouillon Cubes, crumbled | ¼ tsp (1 mL) pepper |
| | ½ lb (250 g) dry pasta, cooked |

In a large skillet, heat oil and brown chicken on both sides. Add vegetables during last 2-3 minutes. Crumble OXO in hot water and add to skillet. Cover and simmer over low heat 15-20 minutes. Remove chicken and keep warm. Combine milk, flour, Dijon mustard, basil and pepper. Add to skillet and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. To serve, toss most of the cream sauce with the cooked pasta; arrange on a plate and place chicken pieces, cut in diagonal slices, on the pasta. Top with remaining cream sauce. For a meatless version, omit the chicken. Makes 4 servings.

* 1 OXO cube (crumble or regular) = 1 OXO packet = 1 tbsp (15 mL) OXO powder or OXO liquid.

Snowbird's break on services denied

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A Didsbury Snowbird who spent the winter south of the border, will not get a break on his utility bill from the town of Didsbury.

F.M. Hawthorne had asked for a refund on his water, sewer and garbage bill after spending six months in Arizona over the winter. While on his winter get-away, Hawthorne was told by other Didsbury residents that they applied to have the charges stopped during the months they were away.

Town council recording secretary Fran Murphy told council it has been common practise over the past 10 years for the town to discontinue billing for Snowbirds who apply before they leave town. Town employees then shut off their water service for free.

But because Hawthorne didn't apply until after his return from Arizona, council decided against reversing the charges. It also lead to a discussion about whether anyone should not have to pay for sewer and water service while they are away.

"I have a problem with (not charging residents while they are away) because the town has a garbage contract based on a per capita cost and the town has to pay whether there is pick up or not," said Councillor Dan Peters. "We also have a huge cost for the sewage lagoon which we all have to pay for regardless of whether or not one person is using it. That's like saying I probably shouldn't pay as much of a mortgage as you do because I'm not home as much."

Council also discussed charging a fee for residents who want their water turned off and on, a service offered free by the town. A $50 fee was discussed but many councillors felt the charge was too high.

The town's operational services committee will look into the matter and make recommendations.

Didsbury High School news

Special to the Review

Lots of action here at DHS!

The May Monarch fundraising campaign is underway and students are busy lining up work - if you have a job for students, please contact the school.

Track and field practice is going full steam ahead - Miss Baker and the track and field athletes may be seen out on the track regularly after school. The County meet is less than two weeks away.

"Bravos" go out to Mrs. Perrin and her Drama 10/20 class for their entertaining work in presenting two plays to our school last Wednesday afternoon. Bobbi Jackson directed "Yes, yes...a Thousand Times Yes" and the ensemble cast produced and directed their play "Another Cinderella". Both were excellent!

Grade Nines have been involved in selecting courses for high school as well as planning for Grade 9 camp. They will be heading out to Wildhorse Creek after the May long weekend.

Badminton is over and results are as follows: DHS grade 9 students won their grade level of play at the county tournament on April 19th. Those placing first or second and so qualifying for the Zone tournament were: Beau Hawkings - 1st boys singles, Kristi Jacobson - 2nd girls singles, Jason Hildebrandt and Karen Dahl - 1st mixed doubles, and Tonya Plewis and Stacey Campbell - 2nd in girls doubles. The Senior Team handily won the County Tournament again this year. Those qualifying for Zone play were: Scott Portingale - 1st boys singles, Randy Bates - 2nd boys singles, Sheila Taylor - 2nd girls singles, Joanne Walker and Renee McNeil -

2nd girls doubles, Ray Budd - 2nd boys singles, Audrey Campbell - 1st girls singles, Peter Winter and Obey Chanthavong - 1st boys doubles, Kim Russell and Sheryl Snyder - 2nd girls doubles, and Elsbeth Houden and Shane Howard - 2nd mixed doubles. Coaches were Mr. Taylor and Mr. Thompson.

Special to the Review

On Saturday, May 13, 1995, Heritage Mushrooms will be having their Sixth Annual Gardener Appreciation day. Heritage will be giving away spent mushroom compost. Four loaders will be present to load trucks up to one ton. People can also bring their own bags, boxes, etc., and load themselves. There is no charge for the compost or for loading it.

Over the last five years, Gardener Appreciation Day has grown to the point where it seems to be an event in this part of the country. As the word spreads each year, more people are coming from farther away to pick up compost.

Using mushroom compost will make lawns, shrubs, gardens and trees flourish even in the worst of soils. It adds vital nutrients and organic matter plants need for healthy and long lasting growth. Peat moss makes up a small part of the compost, further enhancing its soil conditioning properties.

This highly organic compost is the fertile medium used to grow commercial mushrooms. Because the growing needs of mushrooms and green plants are different, very little of the nutrients in the compost that green plants utilize are used up in the mushroom growing process.

Spent mushroom compost is a very good soil supplement but it is not advised to use it as a soil replacement.

Heritage Mushrooms is located on Highway #2, between Airdrie and Crossfield. We are straight east of the Dickson-Stevenson Rest Stop. Go six miles north of Airdrie to the Crossfield/Drumheller exit. Take the Drumheller exit east one quarter mile to the service road. Turn right on the service road and follow it back south to Heritage Mushrooms.

CANADA'S INTERNATIONAL IMMUNIZATION PROGRAM
HELPING CHILDREN BEAT THE ODDS

Canada is an important partner in the global effort to help children in the developing world beat the odds against six deadly, but preventable, diseases - measles, polio, tuberculosis, tetanus, whooping cough and diphtheria.
Through the worldwide initiative, more than three million young lives are saved each year. Despite this encouraging statistic, nearly two million children a year still die for lack of immunization. The odds can be beaten with your help.

Myra Underhay Florence Nightingale Tea

Hospital Auxiliary volunteers have slated May 10 as the date for their annual Florence Nightingale Tea to run in tandem with National Health Week (May 7 to 13). The tea and bake sale be held at the nursing home from 2 to 3:30 pm this year. Hospital Auxiliary Volunteers spokesperson Myra Underhay said that as in past years, baked goods and carnations will be offered for and sale and at least two home made "craft-type items" will be raffled off as well. The tea and Mother's Day carnation sale are two of the main fund-raisers for the group. All money raised goes directly back into the hospital to buy apparatus and equipment. "The theme for the tea is very different this year," Underhay said. "It's 'Creating a New Agenda for Health. As you know there have been many changes in the new health care system. We're moving on to new things and working with the changes. It's just a real nice enjoyable afternoon; bring a friend.'"

Rhonda Hunter Pre-Mother's Day Family Aquatic Adventure

While loving mothers rarely get steamed when their Mother's Day outing fails to live up to their expectations, they can get as steamed as they like at the Pre-Mother's Day Aquatic Adventure at the Didsbury Aquatic Centre on Saturday, May 13. They can also take a dip in the pool and enjoy a relaxing soak in the hot tub. DAC spokesperson Rhonda Hunter said that a variety of activities are planned to round out the day. For $12.50 (per family), participants will receive a complimentary T-shirt for mom, refreshments and lots of prizes. The Wellness Wagon (on loan from the Calgary and District Be Fit For Life Centre) will be on site all day, along with free samples of healthy foods. "There will be knowledgeable people doing a bunch of really neat tests and providing information on being fit in the 90's," Hunter said. "They do the Alberta Lotteries Wellness Check- it's all complimentary. They can go through that, go on the treasure hunt hike and bike and go for a swim after that." The outdoor segment of the event will go rain or shine. "Bring an umbrella if it rains," Hunter joked. Pre-registration is requested; call the pool to sign up.

Sue de Rosemond PaSu Farm Plant Swap

If it always seems that the grass (or other vegetation) on the other side of the fence looks greener, here's your chance to trade up. PaSu Farm is hosting a Plant Swap on May 27 from 1 pm through to 5 pm. You can swap straight across or make your own deals on a variety of flora. Those bringing plants to trade must mark them with a tag indicating size, color and type. A traditional 'high tea' will be available throughout the day. Horticulture experts will be on hand to answer your questions following a video presentation. You may want to take the truck to PaSu as organizers have also bagged sheep fertilizer in various sizes ranging in price from $5 a bag up to $50 for 3 tons. TransAlta Utilities has donated trees which will go as door prizes. More information can be obtained by calling Pat or Sue at 337-2800.

Joyce Priest

Big Country Summer Games - cultural activities

The nine person Culture Committee, headed by chairperson Joyce Priest, is working hard to add a cultural flair to the upcoming Big Country Summer Games. "There's going to be lots of things happening," Priest said. "The town is going to be noisy and happy for the whole weekend." Kicking things off Friday morning at 8 am, the train station will open their doors to welcome art lovers to an art show. Friday and Saturday evening will feature the dulcet tones of a string quartet, while across town in the Memorial Complex multi-purpose room a three act play/supper theatre will be staged. For those who prefer the fast lane, a roller blading night is planned for Friday night from 8:30 to 11:30 pm in the curling rink. Long time residents and visitors alike will want to check out what's happening at the museum on Saturday and Sunday, as many special events are in the works, including historic site tours scheduled to depart from the museum at 2 pm. Strolling minstrels and clowns will wander from site to site and, for those who prefer to ride rather than walk, heavy horse drawn wagons will be transporting visitors to the various venues. On Saturday, grades four to six will have writing contest entries on display at the library and published authors Marilyn Halverson and Noreen Olson will be presenting readings of their work at the library beginning at 2 pm. Upstairs in the curling rink from 9 am to 5 pm, crafty individuals can take in a craft show and sale. Kids of all ages are sure to enjoy a desert and tea with entertainment geared to families and pre-teens at the Elks hall from 1 to 4 pm. A mix of local and professional talent will take to the Complex stage starting at 8 pm. "We've been working hard and it's looking really good," Priest said. "It's going to be a fun weekend. I'm looking forward to it myself." Summer games organizers remind everyone it's not too late to take part as a volunteer. Information can be obtained through Tracy at the town office.

Jean Craven tennis lessons

Jean Craven of Craven Sport Consulting will be accepting late registrations for those wishing to learn or hone the finer points of their tennis game at the next regular session. Jean has been playing tennis since she was eight and instructing since she was 18. In addition to a distinguished playing and instructional background, her sport consulting business affords a host of contacts and up-to-the-minute tennis related material and information. Everyone from "seven to seventy-seven and beyond" is invited to register for tennis lessons which run twice a week (Mondays and Thursdays) starting May 8 as part of a course of eight lessons. Jean is dividing students into two divisions, absolute beginners who have never set foot on a tennis court, and players wishing to polish the skills they already possess. Classes will be conducted in groups of eight for a fee of $32 each. Depending on the response, Jean may be offering weekend clinics and summer camps when the current session of courses are finished. The four main reasons tennis players have such a great time on the courts according to Jean are: "After swimming and cross country skiing, tennis is the best all around sport exercise; it's inexpensive; it suits all ages, types and shapes and it's fun." To register or to get more information, call Jean at 335-4938.

May 15th is a Special Day

*For a lady who now is old and gray.
She grew into a trike when she was three
But now has trouble bending her knee.
The time has come to pay her back
We shall not give her any slack.
She's boasted and bragged about her age
How young she is! How wise! How sage!
But 50 is here, so tease her well.
And don't tell anyone her name is Del!

THE DIDSBURY REVIEW

Your single best source for local news

What's happening in the Review?

Once again we have had another great year of change in an effort to bring our readers a better quality newspaper.

We have updated our front page and we were the first to include a full weather outlook for the upcoming week from Environment Canada.

Speaking of the environment, we were also the first in the area to include a friendly recycling reminder to keep Didsbury green and boost business at the Lion's Recycling Centre.

Another unique feature is our In Business section. It incorporates all the business and agriculture news and helps make information easier to find inside the Review.

"The Program" continues to be the best source for community events information. Thanks to the help of our advertising sponsors, the Review is able to bring community organizations a free of charge way to bring their messages to all of Didsbury.

One of the best changes at the Review has been the incorporation of computer technology into our operation. We have the equipment and the talent to create spectacular, eye catching ads and to make the newspaper easier and more pleasing to read. You can watch for more changes as we grow with the technology.

Best read. The Didsbury Review is striving to be your single best source of local information. From news to sports to recipes, the Review will keep you up to date.

DID YOU KNOW?

• The Didsbury Review is read by more than 2000 households, an average of 3 people per house - that equals 6,000 readers. The Review is read all over the world with copies sent weekly to as far away as Holland and Japan.

• The Review has one of the highest percentages of readership in the weekly newspaper market? Subscriptions go to 63% of the residences in Didsbury and area.

• The Review consistently covers local sports and is always looking for reports on what your team is doing.

• The Review has twice monthly reports on what's happening with Didsbury town council.

• The Review is the only newspaper in the county with a regular section for local businesses: who they are, how they're doing and where to find them.

• The Review has the latest weather news from environment Canada with easy to read graphics.

• Local humor author Noreen Olson is a regular contributor to the Didsbury Review with At the Kitchen Table.

• The Review's letters section is one of the best read and most responded to parts of the newspaper. We get more local letters than any other newspaper in the county and we have the space to print your opinion.

• The Faces page is a unique and well-read feature of the Review. It's a fun and informative way to find out what you neighbours are doing.

What's New?

If you're looking for all the information about the Town of Didsbury, look no further than page 6 of the Didsbury Review.

Chock full of information about what's happening and who to talk to, the town's advertisement will be a regular weekly feature in the Review.

Just one more way the Review is working to be your single best source for local news.

RELIGION

The Way of Life

by Pastor Richard Pahl
Zion Evangelical Missionary Church

A French philosopher once said, "The whole world is on a mad quest for security and happiness." A famous film star broke down, "I have money, beauty, glamor and popularity. I should be the happiest woman in the world, but I am miserable. Why?" A man went to see a psychiatrist. He said, "Doctor, I am lonely, despondent and miserable. Can you help me?" The psychiatrist suggested he go to a circus and see a famous clown who was said to make even the most despondent laugh with merriment. His patient said, "I am that clown."

Our materialistic world rushes on with its eternal quest for the fountain of happiness! The more knowledge we acquire, the less wisdom we seem to have. The more economic security we gain, the more bored and insecure we become. The more worldly pleasure we enjoy, the less satisfied and contented we are with life. We are like a restless sea, finding a little peace here and a little pleasure there, but nothing permanent and satisfying. So the search for happiness continues but remains unfulfilled. We are all searching for a kind of happiness that will be lasting, bring inner joy and peace which will survive in any circumstances.

This kind of happiness is what Jesus is speaking about and summing us up in the Beatitudes, found in the gospel of Matthew 5:3-12. It is happiness which can only come from God. It is not a superficial happiness that is dependent on circumstances. It is the happiness and contentment that fills the soul even in the midst of the most distressing of circumstances and the most adverse environment. It is the kind that survives when things go wrong and it can smile through the tears. This is the kind of happiness we all seek for.

My dear friend, are you searching for this kind of happiness? If so, I would encourage you to read Matthew 5:3-12 and then ask the Lord for this happiness to fill your life and soul.

Anytime garden project: a cut flower border

For many people, the idea of a traditional flower garden conjures up images of English estates, complete with full-time gardeners.

Busy homeowners, wanting to keep things simple, tend to stick to the basics: petunias or marigolds in sunny spots, impatiens in the shade.

While there's nothing wrong with these standard annuals, there are literally hundreds of others available as transplants at any garden center. Many are the traditional favorites your grandmother might have grown. They're just as easy to plant and they offer much more in terms of beauty and fragrance as well as cut flowers for the house.

You can start anytime after the weather settles down, but starting later in the season can actually be a plus. You'll find large transplants at the garden center already in bloom.

Building the border: Choose a spot that gets full sun, preferably facing south. If you're planting against a foundation or garden wall, put tall-growers at the rear, and graduate downwards to the front, finishing with low-growing edging plants. In a bed or border that will be viewed from both sides, put tall plants in the center.

Traditional favorites: Tall-growing plants to consider are Hollyhocks, Foxglove and common or Mexican Sunflowers. Medium-sized plants for the middle ground include Calendula, Cosmos, Dahlias, Forget-Me-Nots, Snapdragons, Stock and Zinnias. For the forward edges of the border, tried-and-true varieties include Allium, Ageratum, Lobelia and Verbena.

One-step weeding and feeding: Before plugging in your transplants, remove any existing weeds and apply a good weed preventer with plant food, like Preen 'n Green. Scratch it into the soil, plant and water well. This and a second application about four weeks later will prevent competition from new weeds, feed your flowers and save you plenty of unnecessary work. Preen 'n Green works for about three months, then biodegrades, leaving no residue behind.

How to make cut flowers last: Cut flowers early in the morning when they have the highest water content and place immediately into a bucket of water. Change the water in vases daily.

Autumn ideas: This fall, add spring-flowering bulbs like daffodils and tulips to your border. When they're through blooming in late spring or early summer, begin plugging in your annuals again to hide the fading bulb foliage and rebuild your cut flower border.

"Lofty" ambitions work out for shoe repair technician

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

After spending more than one year manufacturing their own special line of nylon tack products, Paul and Marilyn Vickers took the plunge and have opened their own retail store.

Named after plans to move their business into a neighbors loft, Loft Shoe Repair and Tack Shop symbolizes the culmination of a dream for the local pair.

Paul spent 12 years in the shoe repair business and had always wanted to return to the business. After discovering a love for working with nylon and creating his own special line of tack products, they finally got the chance to open their retail store and to focus on the business full time.

"When we moved to Didsbury in 1990, I was just doing shoe repair out of the home," Paul said. "Then a friend brought in some tack he needed repaired and I looked at it and thought 'hey, I can do this', so I started making my own nylon tack product and pet supplies."

After a year, the business outgrew the Vickers' home, one the reasons they decided to branch out with a retail store.

Located on Didsbury main street next door to Intra Don's World Travel, Loft Shoe Repair and Tack Shop is a colorful blend of shoe supplies, tack supplies and consignment items. Besides their own business, the Vickers were also avid to help out other home based businesses and have offered space to other manufacturers, including Pegasus, an equestrian supply maker based in Water Valley, and a young local sculptor who creates one of a kind art works.

The Vickers are very proud of their creations. Creating everything from trailer ties to dog collars, Paul said they use only the heaviest nylon and best hardware available. They custom make products and offer a wide variety of both English and Western riding gear as well as rodeo products.

In the shoe repair side, Paul offers the Loft Lift Club for professional women devilled by the constant wearing of their high heels. They also offer a depot for drop off and pick up at the Carstairs Video Vision (starting May 15).

"We specialize in cowboy boots but we can repair just about everything," Paul said. "Everything from shoes to belts to purses."

While the Vickers are certain their excellent quality will attract customers to their new store, they are also offering some friendly service.

"We want everybody to know that the coffee is always on and anytime they want, they can come by to chat," he said "We love to chat."

Home made. Horse riders looking for some of the best made equestrian products don't have to look any further than home. Loft Shoe Repair and Tack Shop offers their own brand of equestrian products considered by many to be one of the top products on the market. The new store, run by Paul (pictured helping a customer) and Marilyn Vickers, opened two weeks ago in Didsbury. Janice Harrington photo

Horticulture's value averages over $3,300 per acre

Special to the Review

A component of Alberta's agricultural industry that is often overlooked can no longer be undervalued, according to the Council of Alberta Horticulture Industries (CAHI) president.

"Our survey shows just over 48,000 acres in horticultural production generates $163 million in sales, or an average of $3,373 per acre. That figure is substantially higher than that of traditional field crops," said Henry Heuver.

For example, dryland grown hard spring wheat has a gross sales per acre of $120, as an irrigated crop the value almost doubles to $225 per acre. In comparison, the gross sales per acre of seed potatoes averages $2,350, strawberries $4,950, green onions $11,200, field grown flowers $20,320 and greenhouse poinsettias $217,000.

Only 23 percent of Alberta's total land in crop production is devoted to horticulture. However, horticultural crops represent 11 percent of total crop value.

Heuver's numbers are from the Alberta Horticultural Industry Survey officially recently released in Edmonton. The survey was commissioned by CAHI.

CAHI was formed two years ago as an umbrella advocacy association for the horticultural sector. Its members include 10 different horticultural related organizations.

"Our sector has been overlooked because of its small size, but its importance in the overall agriculture industry and rural development must be recognized," said Heuver.

Horticulture is highly labor intensive. The survey found the provincial horticultural sector employs an average of one person per 16 acres. Nearly a quarter of gross sales represent wages. As well, high technical and management skills are required.

"Combined with the substantial room for expansion to serve the provincial market, this means job opportunities and economic growth," said Heuver. "Every additional quarter of land diversifying into horticulture offers the equivalent of 10 direct jobs and 19 spin-offs ones. Additionally, every dollar of production represents saving on imports."

Heuver also noted the partnership attitude between the industry and government, in particular the formation of the horticultural product team. The team has both industry and government members and Heuver described it "as a way in which producers can contribute to the development of Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development policies and services and to a joint vision of the future."

Alberta Agriculture Minister Walter Paszkowski said Alberta needs to be in the forefront of diversification. "These high-value crops are an excellent way for Alberta to diversify its agricultural base. After all agriculture is our future and not just our past, but that does not mean we will continue production in the same way. Especially now with the end of the WGTA and the Crow Benefit, our future lies in diversification."

The survey was funded with assistance from the federal Farm Support Adjustment Measures (FSAM 1) program.

Survey summaries are available from the CAHI office in Lethbridge.

630 - CARDS OF THANKS

We here would like to express our appreciation and gratitude to each and every one, that helped out in every way to comfort us, in time of Hilda's sickness and sorrow for over the past 3 years. Special thanks to Dr. Graff and Dr. Turner and the nursing staff of the Olds General Hospital. Also the nurses and home care staff of the Mountain View Health Center, Didsbury. Further we want to thank the Mountain View Funeral Chapel staff for the burial services. Well done, and our most grateful thanks to Father Vic Perron, Pastor and Al Dietrich and son for the services and prayers. Also to Wynnie Moon God's blessings and thanks in arranging prayers and the after service lunch that was put on by the Ladies U.C.W. The luncheon was held in the basement of St. Anthony's Church. We further extend our thanks for the floral tributes, mass cards, phone calls and for all the money donations that was directed to the Cancer Fund, Calgary and many donations to the building of the new St. Anthony's Catholic Church (requested by Wynnie Moon) and many, many thanks to all our relatives and friends that gave us the comfort and support in the time of sorrow in the loss of Hilda Koss. Alex J. Koss and daughter Connie 4-11c

640 - IN MEMORIAMs

NUSS - In loving memory of Peter, dear Father and Grandfather, who passed away May 11, 1991.

Sadly missed and always remembered by Reg, Marily, Bob and Myrna and families. 4-11p FULKERTH - In loving memory of Russell who passed away, May 10, 1972.

Treasured memories always. Ever remembered by his wife Lillian and families. 4-11p

STEFFLER, Martin John - passed away suddenly May 3, 1990.

"He went away, without a farewell, He said goodbye to none, But Heaven's gate was open wide, And a loving voice said "come". Beside his grave we often stand, Our hearts are tired and sore, But through the gloom, There comes the words, Not dead, just gone before." Always remembered and loved by Mom and family. 4-11p

WEATHERHEAD

Blake and Cheryl Weatherhead joyfully announce the arrival of Kelsey, age 2 1/2 and Patricia, age 9 months. They joined the family April 4, 1995 when Cheryl and sister Becky arrived from Haiti. The girls were eagerly met at the airport by brothers Drew and Evan and, of course, their proud papa. Thanks to all who helped with our adoption and those who encouraged us to go for our dream. The Lord is faithful and His timing is perfect.

Grand opening. Alberta Environmental Protection Minister Ty Lund was in Olds last week to help officially open the Olds College Compost Technology Centre. The Centre is a unique facility in Canada, designed to teach about composting technology. Janice Harrington photo

The puck stops here

by Elaine Wilson
Review writer

A capacity crowd of close to 300 jammed into the Olds Legion last Friday night to be on hand for the annual Grizzly awards banquet.

Emcee Kevin Burns, Grizzly president Hugh Bodmer and general manager Bob Clark all took a turn behind the microphone reviewing the year as it played out for the team on and off the ice, but as in years past, coach Chris Stewart's players' roast was a highlight of the formal program.

Stewart offered a peak into players' antics on the bench and in the dressing room, with humor and a sentimental twist as he bid goodbye to many of the senior members of the team who won't be returning for the 1995/96 season.

Stewart's own plans regarding a future with the Grizzlies remain uncertain at present as he fields offers from other teams interested in his services. Bob Clark said some restructuring would take place in the general manager portfolio as well. While Clark plans to remain "very active" in the Grizzly operation, he indicated that due to time constraints, his position would be revamped and possibly modified to 'director of operations', rather than general manager.

"It all depends on what Chris [Stewart] decides to do," Clark said.

Awards shared by two players included Rookie of the Year, shared by Jim Lawrence and Lucas Gergel, Best Defenseman, shared by Jeramie Heistad and Tyler Baraboff and Most Valuable Player, shared by Marek Tatar and Ian Perkins.

Other awards presented were: Unsung Hero- Jason Dageford, Top Scholastic Achiever- Stephen Wagner, Most Improved- Danny Heilman, Top Scorer- Lucas Gergel, CKGY's Rock Solid Award- Kevin McDonald, President's Award- Josh Erdman. The first recipient of the new $1,000 scholarship offered to 'graduating' Grizzlies planning to pursue a post-secondary education went to Drew Ginther.

A one of a kind hand made carving by Rolie Boulet was presented to Grizzwald the mascot who was declared to be "here in spirit" by Emcee Kevin Burns who accepted on his behalf with thanks.

The Bob Hill award, also a dual prize, was presented to Mel Korte and Caroline Bodmer.

Busy summer. Staff at the arena don't get to take the summer off just because the ice is gone. Currently, staff are busy replacing rotting boards along the ice surface. The wood, subjected to high humidity and other factors over the past twenty years, was falling apart. Arena staff will only be able to replace about 80 percent of the boards this season. Janice Harrington photo.

Lawn bowling news

by A. Pringle
Special to the Review

Our president is Owen Clouston and we anticipate a busy summer.

Plans are being made to host Lawn Bowling at the Summer Games June 16-17-18.

Many players - beginners and seasoned - are needed - so get your name in quickly. Owen plans to have two categories - 30 to 59 years of age or 60 plus. Coaches will be on hand to help all.

Regular bowling will be Wednesday and Thursday evenings (7 p.m.). Contact Ray Schumaker who is the draw master - 335-8239 - and be on a team.

Classes will be set up to teach the rudiments of bowling.

See you on the greens.

Hounding the title

Scotty "The Bulldog" Olson is alive and well today. He answered the bell that questioned, can Scotty come out and play.

30 wins - 2 losses record is now 31-2, The IBO World Flyweight hamp did what he said he'd do. The Agricom in Edmonton, his title on the line, The Bulldog's night, 12 round revenge and everything went fine. Jorge "Luis" Roman came to challenge for the crown, Roman had beaten Scotty once, and so came back to town. But after 12-3 minute rounds, the scorecards clearly said, Scotty still wears the flyweight crown, squarely upon his head. And now we all await the question, how soon will we know, Will Scotty get the big time shot and how far can he go.

Morris back in top riding form

Special to the Review

After a tough year and a half, fighting back from a broken bone in his hand, bareback rider Cam Morris, of Patricia, AB, demonstrated this weekend that he's back in the race for the CFR.

Morris broke the scaphoid bone in his riding hand after being thrown off the Calgary Stampede's four-time bareback and saddle bronc world champion horse, Lonesome Me Skool, near the end of the 1993 season, forcing him to opt out of the Canadian Finals. And 1994 wasn't a great year either, as the five-time CFR cowboy couldn't get rolling until June due to his hand. He still managed to win over $5,000, but didn't make the Canadian Finals for the first time in three years due to his shortened season.

But this past weekend, Morris jumped from 13th to 7th in Canadian standings, winning on Verne Franklin's Wild Oats at the Lloydminster Kinsmen Rodeo and coming second on Harvey Northcott's Tazmanian Devil at Westerner Silver Buckle Rodeo in Red Deer for a health payday of $1,818.

"Lloydminster felt real good," said Morris. "I had a horse called Wild Oats and she's just really nice to ride. At Red Deer, I had a young horse of Harvey's. He apparently was sick for most of last year, so that's the first time he'd been bucked for six months or so and he really bucked."

"I could have finished a little better," concluded the modest cowboy, "but it went alright."

Don McLeod of Brandon, MB also had a big weekend, tying for second at Lloydminster and taking a solo second at Red Deer, to walk away with $948 and $544 respectively. Darrell Cholach of Okotoks, AB was the bareback winner at the Silver Buckle Rodeo with a high flying ride which gained him 84 points.

Veteran Joe Lucas showed his time-honed skills, winning at Red Deer for $1,279, and garnering third spot at Lloydminster for another $521. The Carstairs cowboy moved from 6th to 2nd in the CPRA rankings. At Lloydminster, Cliff Williamson of Madden won the roping with a time of 7.2 seconds, winning $1,043.

In ladies' barrel racing, Dawn Rude of La Glace, AB was a multiple winner, coming second at Lloydminster and fourth at Red Deer to take home paycheques worth $1,064. Sharon Kobald of Bighorn, WY won at Red Deer, while Amie Stone of Madden crossed the line in a time of 12.97 for the victory at Lloydminster.

Jack Watts of Kinsella, AB continued his string of impressive performances in bull riding, winning at Lloydminster with 88 points on Verne Franklin's Copenhagen Braddock to take home $932 and move him to second in the Canadian standings. Kirk Wakefield of High River, AB won the bull riding at Red Deer on Wayne Vold's Cattleman's A91, leaving with $1,387.

If you wanted intense competition, Red Deer was the place to be during the saddle bronc event. Three cowboys - Rod Warren of Valleyview, AB, Kent Manor of Fillette, WY and Guy Shapka of Alix, AB - tied for first place with 83 points for winnings of $1,023 each. At Lloydminster, hometown boy, Ian Freeman, won the event on Verne Franklin's Night Mare for a $792 payday.
